

The Tribune Building

OFFICES OVERLOOKING CITY HALL PARK

Offices here look out over an open space of almost twenty acres in City Hall Park. It is one of the few places in the city where you enjoy sunshine and fresh air on the third floor as much as on the top floor.

Note the unusually large light and air spaces. Almost every office has two or more big windows. Running water in practically all offices.

SPLENDID LOCATION AND SERVICE

The Tribune Building is located at the transportation centre of the city, being only a few steps from the terminal and subway stations of Brooklyn Bridge. It is just across the park from Broadway. There is no more convenient or comfortable building in the city of New York.

The Tribune is just as careful about admitting tenants to its building as it is in allowing advertisers to use the columns of its newspaper. Reliable firms only are accepted as tenants, so you are assured of good neighbors. You will find the type of people you meet in this building representative of the best business interests of the city.

Tenants desiring offices laid out to meet their individual requirements will be taken care of promptly. Walls will be moved and partitions constructed to give the greatest efficiency to any office arrangement. Regardless of how much or how little space you require, this building will gladly arrange it to suit your own needs.

Among the many conveniences offered in this building are the following: Standard plunger elevators operating all hours of day and night; steam heat and running water at all hours; corridors and woodwork all newly refinished. Everything thoroughly modern and up-to-the-minute.

United States Post Office is located on opposite side of the park. This is especially convenient for firms having heavy mail to handle.

New Municipal Building only one block distant. Legal firms and those having much business to transact with the city find this advantageous.

Special attention is given to telephone inquiries. The number is Beekman 3060.
